Sherman Alexie won the American Book Award and the PEN/Hemingway Award. This semiautobiographical account of one Spokane Indian's struggle against incredible obstacles won the National Book Award in the category of Young People's literature. Born poor and with life-threatening hydrocephalus, Arnold "Junior" Spirit shocks doctors by surviving brain surgery. And then—convinced his future lies off the reservation—he enrolls in Reardan High School, where the only non-Caucasian is its Indian mascot.
